Howard has made merciless fun of Heidi on his radio show

HEIDI'S SICK OF STERN ALREADY!

DESPITE the camaraderie you may see on Season 8 of "America's Got Talent," Heidi Klum hates her fellow judge Howard Stern!

That's what a source is saying about the supermodel and the radio shock jock after he cruelly bashed her on his show.

"Heidi's been planning to play it nice for the cameras right from the June 4 premiere, but she secretly can't stand Howard," an insider on the "AGT" set said.

"SHE'LL NEVER FORGET HOW he made fun of her eating habits and thick German accent and cracked cruel Nazi jokes. The last straw was when Howard made fun of her mother.

"Heidi confronted Howard when they started taping. He called his remarks 'innocent comedy,' but she's still steaming."

Their feud dates back to 2002 when Stern, 59, ragged on Heidi after the then-Victoria's Secret Angel canceled an appearance on his raunchy radio broadcast.

More recently, the 40-year-old beauty – who also hosts

Lifetime's "Project Runway" – was infuriated when Howard didn't defend her after his radio sidekick Robin Quivers questioned her qualifications to judge "AGT," said the source.

"When I heard that Heidi Klum was the new judge, I was like, now I can't watch the show," Robin told Howard on March 11.

"What is her credibility for telling people whether they can be in Las Vegas and do a show?"

Stern responded: "Don't ask me. I didn't hire her."

The source added: "Heidi may be a world-famous supermodel, but she's got her own hidden talent – putting on a poker face. She'll have everyone thinking that she likes Howard, but Heidi says she joined 'AGT' to do a job – not make friends."

JUST show Tom the money!

Big-screen superstar Tom Cruise may be taking his 1996 blockbuster "Jerry Maguire" to the small screen.

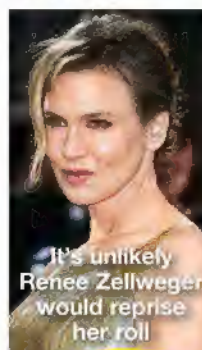

Friends of the 50-year-old "Mission: Impossible" hunk say he "borrowed" the idea from comedian Eddie Murphy, who's planning to turn his popular '80s film franchise "Beverly Hills Cop" into a TV series for CBS.

"TOM'S SO INTRIGUED BY Eddie's return to his signature role that he's been exploring opportunities to revive some of his own big characters in a similar fashion," a source told The ENQUIRER.

So he shifted his focus to "Jerry Maguire," and now the source says his biggest challenge will be convincing his co-stars from that flick – including Renee Zellweger, Cuba Gooding Jr. and Kelly Preston – to join the project.

"UNFORTUNATELY, IT'S looking unlikely that Renee would even consider a TV series," said the source. "But most of the cast from that movie have remained close to Tom, and he loves the idea of getting his old pals back together on a regular paid gig."

Tom is now developing scripts for a TV series pilot that picks up 20 years after where the film left off, with a new generation of sports agents working under Jerry Maguire.

"He's really excited about this project," added the source. "TV is something he's always turned his nose up to, but after watching what Eddie's doing, he can see the value in it."

J.LO'S UGLY FIGHT WITH CASPER

- & RAPPER PITBULL'S CAUGHT IN MIDDLE

THERE's trouble brewing between Jennifer Lopez and her boy toy Casper Smart!

Their 18-month relationship hit a huge speed bump when Casper accused his Latin lover of cheating on him with red-hot rapper Pitbull – and she didn't deny it!

In fact, when the 26-year-old former back-up dancer grilled Jennifer about her relationship with the "Krazy" singer, a source says she just laughed at him.

Now Casper is so desperate to keep J.Lo's affection that he's started copying Pitbull's signature style, from his tailored suits to his shaved head.

"CASPER IS CONVINCED JENNIFER is fooling around with Pitbull behind his back and that he's on the chopping block," said a source. "He confronted her and demanded to know if she's having an affair with Pitbull. Then he ordered her to cut ties with him. Jen was so taken aback that at first she just laughed in Casper's face.

"But then she got really mad. She shot back at him, 'Don't you talk to me like that!' and stormed off.

"Later, she reminded Casper that she's the boss and moneymaker in the relationship – and if he doesn't like the terms, he can hit the road. And if Jen dumps him, Casper knows his days of living high on the hog are over. He broke down and sobbed, 'Jen can't leave me yet – she promised to make me famous!'"

It would seem he's got good reason to worry.

Jennifer, 44, and Pitbull, 32, whose real name is Armando Perez, have worked together on multiple projects since 2009. They caused an uproar last year when they performed their song "Dance Again" on "American Idol," steaming up the stage with a sexy bump and grind that was deemed too racy for TV.

Now, they're back at it again with the hit single "Live It Up."

Casper has long-known that his girlfriend and the Cuban-American Miami-based rapper were friends. But his fears that it could be more than that went into overdrive after the pair filmed a steamy music video together in South Florida in early May.

"Casper is so jealous that he's even started copying Pitbull's mannerisms," the source continued. "He thinks that if he acts more like Pitbull Jen will like him more, but his desperation makes him even less appealing to Jen."

Jennifer, who has 5-year-old twins with soon-to-be ex-husband Marc Anthony, recently acknowledged that she'd like to get married again. But according to the source, she's told pals she doesn't think Casper is husband material.

"He's immature and he doesn't have the drive, ambition and self-

BARBARA BEGS DAUGHTER TO GET HELP!

A DEVASTATED Barbara Walters is demanding that her troubled daughter enter rehab after a DUI bust!

Sources say the 83-year-old TV legend – who recently announced she's retiring next summer – flipped out after her daughter Jacqueline Danforth and boyfriend Dennis Pinkham were arrested in Florida. Cops pulled Jackie, 44, over on suspicion of DUI and say they found marijuana and a pot pipe in Pinkham's pocket.

Now in a shocking twist, The ENQUIRER has learned that Jackie's former marriage to a fishing guide blew up after she started an affair with Pinkham!

"JACKIE DITCHED MY SON MARK and went off with this Dennis guy," her ex-father-in-law Chris Danforth told The ENQUIRER.

"Mark was blindsided. He thought they were happy. It was a bad breakup, and the divorce broke Mark's heart."

According to a police report, Jackie's blood alcohol level was 0.218 – more than twice Florida's legal limit of .08 – when she was arrested in Naples, Fla., on May 19.

"Jackie called Barbara from jail right after she was arrested," a source told The ENQUIRER.

"Barbara was beyond upset and demanded that Jackie get herself into rehab immediately.

"She'd hoped that Jackie's cheating on Mark and the end of their marriage would stay quiet. Now her arrest has dragged it all into the open."

Sadly, it wasn't the first brush with booze and drugs for Jackie, who was adopted by Barbara and her second husband, Broadway producer Lee Guber, in 1968.

In a 2004 interview, she admitted to using quaaludes, Valium, meth and pot as a teenage runaway. When Barbara finally tracked her down, she had Jackie placed in a drug intervention program in Idaho.

While the troubled teen turned her life around, "now it looks like Jackie has relapsed," said the source.

"Barbara was looking forward to a peaceful retirement, but she's found herself in another desperate struggle to save her daughter."

KATIE HOLMES has latched onto one of Hollywood's hottest new hunks, but friends fear his checkered past could ruin their budding romance.

Nearly a year after divorcing superstar Tom Cruise, Katie has been spotted out and about in New York City with her tall, dark and handsome "Mania Days" leading man Luke Kirby.

The 34-year-old Canadian actor also stars in the highly touted TV series "Rectify," and sources say he has a shocking past that includes filming explicit sex scenes, nursing a crush on one of Katie's former co-stars, and a secret link to Cruise.

"Luke is very handsome and personable, and seems to have already swept Katie off her feet, but there's a ton she doesn't know about him," a friend told The ENQUIRER.

"SHE NEEDS TO DO A LITTLE digging into his past so she doesn't get any big surprises later. The first thing she needs to do is to ask Luke about his friendship with Tom."

Cruise, 50, had a hand in hiring Luke for the fact-based 2003 drama "Shattered Glass," which was co-produced by the "Mission: Impossible" star.

"It's ironic that Tom helped give Luke a big break – and now Luke's dating his ex-wife," noted a source.

In another stunner, Luke – who stripped down and showed all while starring in HBO's racy 2007 drama "Tell Me You Love Me" – has a rabid following among gay men.

"Luke's naked picture has popped up all over gay websites on the Internet," said another source.

The actor also filmed several nude sex scenes with Katie's former "Dawson's Creek" co-star Michelle Williams for the 2011 drama "Take This Waltz," and he admits they shared real chemistry.

"There was a kind of magic in the air," he said in an interview. "It helped that there is something rooted in Michelle, who is so magnetic. I really had to raise my game."

Luke also steamed up the small screen in the Sundance Channel series "Rectify," which has been renewed for a second season. He stars as a defense attorney carrying on a lusty affair with the sister of a former death row inmate.

"Luke has a penchant for falling for his co-stars, and he had a serious crush on Michelle," a Hollywood pal told The ENQUIRER. "Katie ought to take it slow with him."

Since her divorce, Katie

has hung out with a few male friends, including her attorney Jonathan Wolfe, and her co-stars Jeremy Strong and Josh Hamilton.

But the 34-year-old single mom — who's raising her daughter Suri, 7, in the Big Apple — seems to be enjoying her new crush, and her chemistry with Luke has been clear to see while shooting scenes for "Mania Days."

In the film, the two play a manic-depressive couple who meet at a psychiatric hospital and begin a romance. But even after the cameras stop rolling, they seem so happy together.

On May 21, they were spotted strolling together in New York's Greenwich Village and later enjoyed lunch at a trendy Middle Eastern restaurant.

A source says they also eat lunch together in Katie's private trailer on the set and have holed up in her apartment rehearsing their lines. "For Katie and Luke, it's a case of life imitating art," said the first source.

The pal added: "Katie really enjoys Luke's company, and Suri's already a fan of his. They make an adorable couple, so this could be the beginning of a beautiful romance — both on screen and off!"

Salesclerk
STILL WORKING IN LINGERIE
DEPARTMENT
AT AGE 92

Earlene Moore believes fitting bras is an art

Earlene says that 90 percent of women wear the wrong size bra

‘Everyone thinks they’re a 34B – in their dreams’

Bra-vo for her!

EARLENE MOORE started in retail sales in 1939 – and at 92 she’s still fitting bras for ladies in the Lone Star State!

“I absolutely love my job, and I plan on working until I drop dead!” she said. “Besides, who wants to stay home getting bored and fat?”

Earlene landed her first job 74 years ago by offering to work for nothing at all of the fashionable ladies’ stores at the corner of Fifth and Congress in Austin, Texas.

ONE EXECUTIVE FINALLY AGREED to give her a chance, and when a salesclerk failed to show up for work, she landed a $9-a-week job selling costume jewelry.

She took another job on weekends for $2 a day, and fell in love with retail.

“I loved dealing with people and making them happy,” said Earlene, a twice-widowed mother of two, grandmother of six and great-grandmother of five.

Over the years, she’s sold everything from fabrics to hats, and eventually specialized in lingerie. After working at several large department stores, she opened her own place, Leger Lingerie, in 1971.

But the trend toward casual clothing hurt business, and Earlene closed the store in 1995.

“Women stopped dressing up and wanting beautiful lingerie,” she said.

Earlene retired, but Saks Fifth Avenue lured her back to work two years later. She stayed until the store closed last December, then was offered a job selling bras at nearby Julian Gold women’s apparel store.

“I thought it would be wonderful for us to have Austin’s best-loved bra-fitter,” said store director Melinda Snell.

Immaculately dressed and fresh from the salon, Earlene greets customers with: “What are you looking for, darlin’?” And then her expertise kicks in.

“Fitting bras is an art,” she said. “There is nothing worse than a bad-fitting bra. And 90 percent of the women wear the wrong bra.

Most have never been fitted.

“Everyone thinks they’re a 34B – in their dreams,”

Earlene gives every customer her full attention.

“The harder they are to fit, the harder I work,” she said. “But I don’t give up. Every single customer is different. She’s a worthy person and deserves attention.”

AS FOR THE SECRET TO HER LONG life, Earlene credits gratitude, being happy and healthy living.

“I’m grateful for the life I’ve had, my family, my friends, my jobs,” she said.

“Besides that, I’m a happy person. I eat what I want, and I get plenty of exercise at work. I love to read biographies – they tell me about people. I smoked for 25 years and thoroughly enjoyed it. But I quit in 1985 when I couldn’t climb steps like I wanted to.

Ashley Judd PLOTS GREAT ESCAPE

Stressed

to Europe

NEWLY single Ashley Judd plans to make an "Eat, Pray, Love"-style pilgrimage, a source says.

With her 11-year marriage to Scottish race car driver Dario Franchitti ending, sources say the actress/activist hopes to heal on a religious trek through Europe with her close pal, eating disorder expert Tinnie "Minnie" McCarty.

"Ashley has been planning a special adventure that will take her far away from everything stressful and help clear her mind," an insider told The ENQUIRER.

"Since she's been on her own, she's had time to focus on herself and she's excited to celebrate that. She's been talking with Minnie, whom she calls her 'grandma of choice,' about taking this trip and what it would mean to them both."

The 45-year-old "Kiss the Girls" star recently sent a message on Twitter about going on an "ancient religious pilgrimage" with Minnie, her former therapist.

Ashley also shared a link on her social media site about the pilgrimage, a 600-mile trek through France and Spain made by father-son duo Martin Sheen and Emilio Estevez in the 2010 film "The Way."

The journey, known as the Way of St. James, dates back to medieval times and ends at a famous cathedral in Spain, where tradition says the remains of the apostle St. James – the patron saint of laborers – are buried.

With her latest movie "Divergent" ready to wrap and no other work in the near future, Ashley – who's now divorcing three-time Indy 500 winner Franchitti – is ready to roll, said her pal.

Ashley thinks it's the perfect time for her and Minnie to make the pilgrimage," said the source. "It would help her through the healing process of divorce as well as strengthen her bond with a dear friend."

DON'T worry, Kim – your sisters have your back!

Kourtney and Khloe Kardashian are tired of people poking fun at their pudgy pregnant sister in magazines and on the Internet – and they're determined to help her shed the extra weight ASAP after her baby's birth sometime around the first of July.

Insiders say Kim, 32, has already gained more than 50 pounds. While she's struggled to keep her weight under control, baby daddy Kanye, 36, thinks she should be eating for two – and he's been encouraging her to indulge.

DURING A RECENT trip to Paris, the expectant parents dined on French pastries, pizza and pasta. And in March, while in Atlanta for the premiere of Tyler Perry's "Temptation" – in which Kim plays a matchmaker – she and Kanye chowed down on buttermilk fried chicken, mashed potatoes, mac and cheese and waffles.

"When Kim's alone in L.A., she tries really hard to work out and watch what she eats," said a source. "But the minute she meets up with Kanye, she starts packing on the pounds."

Kourtney, 34, and Khloe, 28, have both faced their own weight challenges, and they're furious about the mean-spirited jabs at their sister. When Kim tearfully confessed that she's afraid of being fat forever, the two came up with a post-birth plan to help Kim get her famous body back.

They've already arranged for a personal trainer to go to Kim's house every morning to make sure she gets in a daily workout, and they've also come up with a diet plan that will help Kim shed the pounds while still giving her enough sustenance to breast feed.

"The plan involves eating plenty

As an added bonus, Kourtney and Khloe have promised Kim a trip to New York's Fashion Week in September, where they'll treat her to a sexy new wardrobe if she loses the baby weight.

“The girls have always been close, but they've become even closer since Kim started taking flack for her weight gain,” added the source. “Kourtney and Khloe want to protect her from the bashing – and they'll do everything they can to help her get back in shape as quickly as possible after her baby's birth.”

Kim Kardashian's sisters Kourtney and Khloe are very protective of her

Plus! Her varicose veins nightmare!

PREGNANT Kim Kardashian had better get a foothold on reality and stop wearing those too-tight Lucite heels!

The 32-year-old beauty has been torturing her tootsies by squeezing them into too-tight shoes. But medical experts warn she could be risking her health – and that of her unborn baby – all in the name of high fashion.

“KIM IS MAKING A BAD MISTAKE,” said a close source. “She should have started putting on comfortable footwear as early as possible in her pregnancy.”

For expectant moms, high heels or stilettos can hinder blood circulation, trigger varicose veins and cause other problems, including dangerous falls, say experts.

Dr. Arthur Wisot, a noted Los Angeles obstetrician who has not treated Kim, told THE ENQUIRER: “High heels are not a good idea during pregnancy because your center of gravity shifts and you lose your sense of balance.

“This could lead to a fall that in extreme cases could injure not only the mother but cause premature labor.”

What's more, said another expert, wearing the wrong footwear can cause swelling and widening of the feet. Ankle strength can diminish, contributing to increased instability.

Improper footwear can also lead to aching, enlarged spider veins.

Fortunately, pregnant women can take steps to avert some of these problems by wearing flat shoes with arch support.

“At the very least, Kim should have switched from high heels to comfortable shoes with a two-inch wedge,” said a source. “As it is, she's playing with fire.”

'BACHELORETTE' HUNK'S

"BACHELORETTE" contestant Brandon Andreen hopes to win the heart of beautiful Desiree Hartsock – but she might kick him to the curb when she discovers he's hiding a "bombshell" secret.

As the ninth season of the hit ABC reality show made its debut on May 27 featuring "Bachelor" Sean Lowe castoff Desiree, The ENQUIRER has learned exclusively that one of her suitors was charged with making a bomb threat at a General Motors plant in 2005.

SHOCKING COURT DOCUMENTS reveal that 26-year-old Brandon was working as a telemarketer in Minnesota when he called the GM plant in nearby Wisconsin and identified himself as an FBI agent. He told a worker that there was a briefcase in an elevator shaft, it contained a "highly explosive device," and the building needed to be evacuated immediately. Brandon was eventually charged with a felony but managed to strike a plea bargain, reducing the charge to a misdemeanor, and paid a fine of more than $1,000.

When contacted by The ENQUIRER, Brandon said: "I

PENELOPE CRUZ is proving she's a timeless beauty by becoming the oldest Bond Girl ever.

The Latina sexpot is set to steal the title from Honor Blackman, who was 39 when she starred in "Goldfinger" as Pussy Galore. Penelope will be 40 by the time filming on the 24th Bond adventure begins next year.

Frustrated producers have been trying to land the stunner for the past six 007 films, and they're delighted their timetables finally mesh, say sources.

"BOND GIRLS HAVE A HISTORY OF being strong, beautiful and seductive women, and Penelope fits that role perfectly," declared an insider. Other than the return of Daniel Craig as 007, casting is still up in the air for the still-untitled project. But studio bosses believe Oscar winner Penelope has such a strong screen presence that they want her to play

Fortunately, she has an excellent role model in her hubby Javier Bardem, who won raves as the villain Raoul Silva in the last Bond blockbuster, "Skyfall."

"Movie executives see Penelope as the ultimate Bond Girl and one of the few women who can carry off the part of an archvillain," said the insider. "It doesn't hurt her case that Javier was brilliant in 'Skyfall.'"

Even though the actress – mom to 2-year-old son Leo – is close to giving birth to her second child with Javier, the insider said: "She'll have plenty of time to get back into shape for the movie."

Edwards MOVING MISTRESS INTO MANSION

DESPICABLE politico John Edwards has hit a new low!

Sources say the former White House wannabe has decided to break a deathbed promise to his late wife Elizabeth by moving his former mistress Rielle Hunter and their love child Quinn into the family home.

"This has got to be one of John's worst ideas ever," an outraged family source told The ENQUIRER. "Elizabeth was on her deathbed with (her oldest daughter) Cate at her side when she made John promise to never let that woman – she would never even utter Rielle's name – near her children or into her home."

BUT NOW, NEARLY THREE YEARS after Elizabeth lost her brave battle with breast cancer in December 2010, Edwards is reneging on his promise, in part because he's reactivated his law license and is going back to work, said the source. "Since he'll be traveling a lot for work, John didn't want to also be shuttling back and forth between his house in Chapel Hill and Rielle's place in Charlotte," explained the source.

Edwards' younger children with his late wife – Jack, 13, and Emma Claire, 15 – have bonded with Rielle and her daughter Quinn, 5, and don't seem to mind, said the source.

"But Cate and Elizabeth's family, especially her sister Nancy, can't stand the idea," the source added. "Cate knows how much her mother hated Rielle. Elizabeth must be spinning in her grave."

Edwards, 60, was a wildly successful trial lawyer before his political career as a Democratic senator from North Carolina and presidential candidate.

But in a series of bombshell exclusives, The ENQUIRER blew the lid off his affair with blonde divorcee Rielle and the birth of their love child.

Now his decision to move them into his sprawling 102-acre estate has sparked such a family furor that his former in-laws refuse to speak to him, said the source.

"They don't really care that John sees Rielle," noted the source. "But moving the woman who tore Elizabeth's family apart into the home that she crafted into a safe haven is disgusting to them."

A DARK cloud is hanging over Kellie Pickler's big win on "Dancing with the Stars."

Her ex-con dad, Clyde Pickler Jr., is a fugitive, The ENQUIRER has learned.

"This could be a real setback for Kellie," said a source close to the 27-year-old country music cutie. "They were just starting to make amends for the years of heartache he'd caused her."

Clyde, 48, has served several prison sentences through the years and had been on felony probation in Florida after his latest release from the pokey. But authorities say he violated his probation.

"He's currently listed as an 'absconder' for leaving the state without notification," a representative of the Florida Department of Corrections told The ENQUIRER. "That means he's a fugitive."

CLYDE APPARENTLY WENT FROM FLORIDA TO North Carolina without telling his parole supervisor – and that immediately made him a wanted man.

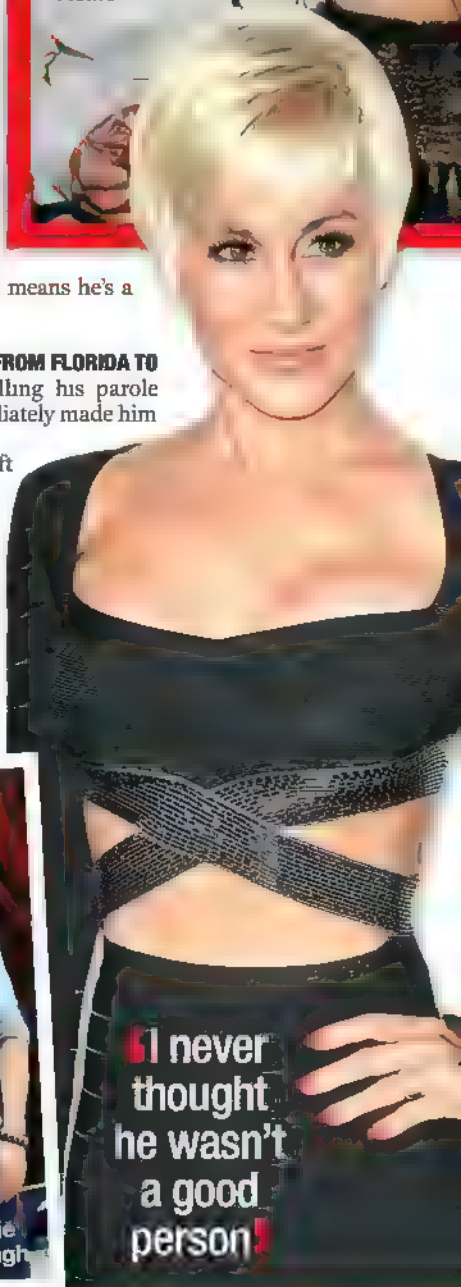

Kellie, whose mom left when she was 2, struggled through a tough childhood before skyrocketing to fame on "American Idol." She was mostly raised by her grandparents in Albemarle, N.C., while Clyde bounced in and out of prison for a variety of crimes including stabbing a neighbor, car theft and aggravated assault for attacking a law enforcement officer. Kellie reunited with her dad after he was released from prison in 2006, but he landed back behind bars in 2007 and 2008.

Still, Kellie said: "I never thought he wasn't a good person," adding that he's battled booze and drug demons but is now clean and sober.

As a fugitive, Clyde even appeared in a video on "DWTS" and talked about how much he loves Kellie.

But her triumph with dance pro Derek Hough on the May 21 "DWTS" finale over Disney star Zendaya, Olympic gymnast Alexandra Raisman and pro football player Jacoby Jones is tainted by her dad's latest legal woes.

Said the close source: "Knowing that her dad could get arrested at any moment and taken back to prison again will break her heart."

"SAFE HAVEN" sweetheart Julianne Hough's party gear has shifted into overdrive since her breakup with Ryan Seacrest in March — and now her worried relatives are begging the blonde beauty to get help before it's too late.

Sources tell The ENQUIRER that Julianne's father, Bruce, and brother, "Dancing with the Stars" pro dancer Derek, are so concerned about her drinking and partying that they're organizing an intervention.

"JULIANNE'S REALLY HIT THE SKIDS and we're all worried," said a longtime friend of the 24-year-old. "She's drinking too much, and Derek thinks Julianne will do something stupid if we don't force her into rehab."

As The ENQUIRER previously reported, "American Idol" host Ryan, 38, dumped the former "DWTS" hoofer after nearly three years together because he'd grown tired of her boozy antics, although a rep for Julianne previously denied that she and Ryan split over excessive partying.

"He's older, already established and set in his ways, and he was getting tired of telling her to lay off the alcohol and stop overindulging," said a source.

But instead of taking the breakup as a wakeup call, sources say Julianne has only grown more out of control.

"I've never seen her drink so much," divulged an insider. "And then she just starts crying right out of the blue. Every time she drinks, she gets drunk, and she talks about how much she still loves Ryan."

Another source added: "Her entire family is worried. They see pictures of her partying and hear tales of her drunken exploits and fear that she's about to go over the edge."

"Julianne was devastated by the breakup with Ryan and went on a wild bender. There's a lot of pain behind her smile — she's a pro at covering her feelings.

"Everyone's afraid she's going to end up in a lot of trouble unless she gets help right away."

A LOT of people felt sorry for Ann Curry after she was coldly booted from her job as co-host of the "Today" show – but not her New York neighbor John Lee!

Lee and his wife live next door to an uninhabited townhome the newscaster purchased with her husband a decade ago – and he says the empty building has not only caused him a tremendous amount of grief but almost cost him his life!

"She's made my life a living hell for 10 long years – and she and her family haven't even moved in," Lee told The ENQUIRER. "On air, Ann comes across as caring and empathetic, a touchy-feely sort of person who wears her emotions on her sleeve."

"But when the cameras aren't rolling, she's far different from her public persona – and not in a good way."

Ann, 56, and her software executive husband, Brian Ross, bought the stunning brownstone on Manhattan's Upper West Side for $2.9 million in 2003. They had planned to renovate the building, but ongoing construction and multiple code violations along the way have triggered a bitter neighborhood feud – and several lawsuits.

"She hasn't shown my wife and me a shred of compassion or understanding for the disruption their decade-long home renovation caused our neighbors and us," Lee explained. "Our quality of life was destroyed. She's an uncaring, mean spirited person who cannot bring herself to apologize for her mistakes."

IN ADDITION TO DISRUPTING THEIR lives, Lee says the final straw came in December 2010 when a water pipe in Ann's building burst because it was vacant and the heat wasn't turned on.

The water flooded the basement of the home Lee shares with wife Lynne Lummel.

"Water surged in knee-deep and wiped out everything that was down there – important papers, computers, books, family photo albums, appliances – all were gone in a flash," said Lee. "And some things were irreplaceable."

If that wasn't bad enough, the 71-year-old retired college professor was nearly electrocuted when he instinctively tried to unplug a space heater that was underwater.

"I got such a jolt that I flew back across the floor," he told The ENQUIRER. "I was dazed and shaken. I think for a few seconds there my wife thought I was a goner. It was an extremely dangerous environment, and I could have been killed."

Damages were in the "tens of thousands of dollars," added Lummel. "We finally reached a settlement with Ann and her husband six months later. I get very emotional when I think of her and what she put us through. As far as she was concerned, we were inconsequential and she treated us very poorly."

Lee says the biggest slap in the face is the fact that Ann has never even apologized. But he finds some satisfaction that Ann got her just rewards when sources say her "Today" co-host Matt Lauer orchestrated her exit from the popular NBC morning show. "I'm a believer in karma and what goes around comes around," Lee said. "Maybe if she'd approached this renovation project in a different way and taken into consideration her neighbors, her career fortunes might not have taken the turn they did."

AFTER Brad Pitt implied in an "Esquire" magazine interview that he wasted his life while wed to Jennifer Aniston, she's getting even by proving that she's still got the goods to keep most men drooling!

The 44-year-old beauty – now engaged to marry actor Justin Theroux – is starting a summer heat wave early with a racy trailer from her new movie "We're the Millers," in which she plays a stripper.

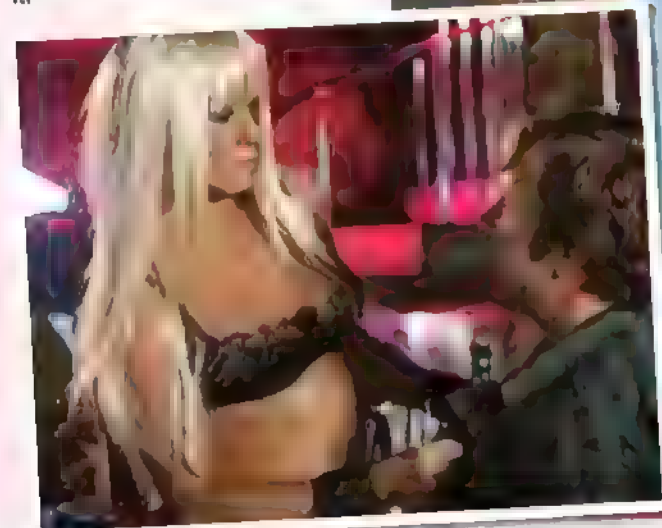

It's a road trip gone awry as Aniston and co-stars Jason Sudeikis, Emma Roberts and Will Poulter pretend to be an All-American family when, in fact, Sudeikis is really a drug dealer trying to smuggle pot into the U.S. from Mexico.

BRAD PITT is still living the high life despite his claim that he's quit smoking pot! A source tells The ENQUIRER that in a shocking drug cover-up, the screen superstar is getting stoned more often than ever to cope with the stress of partner Angelina Jolie's health woes.

"Brad is smoking up a storm these days," said a family insider.

"He's under enormous strain being a rock of support for Angelina, caring for their six kids and juggling his work duties."

But in a twist, Brad insisted in a recent magazine interview that he's denounced his party-hearty ways.

"For a long time I thought I did too much damage – drug damage," Brad said. "I was a bit of a drifter...I spent years fing off. But then I got burnt out and felt that I was wasting my opportunity."

"It was a conscious change. This was about a decade ago. It was an epiphany – a decision not to squander my opportunities."

THE "MONEYBALL" HUNK WAS apparently referring to his days while married to former "Friends" star Jennifer Aniston. But as The ENQUIRER has reported, he's previously clashed with Angelina over his marijuana habit. In 2011, we reported that she went berserk when she discovered that Brad was using an old Airstream trailer parked on the grounds of their Los Angeles estate as a secret drug den.

At one point, the 38-year-old "Salt" beauty – who recently announced she underwent a preventive double mastectomy after a genetic test revealed she was at high risk for breast and ovarian cancer – ordered Brad to kick his dope habit or check into rehab.

"Brad gave up pot smoking for a while because Angie hated it," said the source. "But he went back to it as a crutch to clear his mind and ease his anxiety while Angie was going through procedures related to her surgery. He's ultra-careful now about how and when he fires up. Brad never smokes in the house and usually only at night after the kids are asleep."

"He feels awful that he's letting Angie down, but smoking pot is his coping mechanism right now."

But sources say the blatant whitewash of his drug use isn't the only dilemma facing Brad, whose zombie thriller "World War Z" opens June 21. The 49 year-old actor has admitted that he may suffer from prosopagnosia, a condition that makes it difficult for him to remember faces.

"Seeing how short-term memory loss has been associated with smoking too much grass, the thought must have crossed Brad's mind that his problem recognizing faces could be due to his pot habit," said the source.

"Brad also knows that any form of smoking increases the odds of developing cancer, and he says now that Angie's on the mend, he's going to quit again.

"After seeing Angie struggle with her cancer battle, he realizes that he needs to kick the pot habit for good."

WHICH PLANTS ARE DANGEROUS FOR PETS?

Q. We have a lot of plants in our house and yard. We also have several dogs and cats. As far as we know none of them has ever become ill from chewing on a plant, but a neighbor's dog was recently made quite sick from eating heliotropes. Where can we find a good list of poisonous plants?

A. Unlike grazing animals such as cows and horses, dogs and cats typically don't chew on plants because they are hungry but because they are bored. Many nonpoisonous plants can cause digestive problems such as vomiting and diarrhea because they irritate the gut. To be classified as poisonous, a plant must have systemic effects on the animal or intense effects of the gastrointestinal tract. The ASPCA Animal Poison Control Center has a list of the most common poisonous plants, which can be found on its website, aspc.org. This list includes pictures to help identify the plants. Luckily, in most situations, dogs and cats have better things to do than chew on plants.

WHAT DO YOU RECOMMEND FOR INCONTINENCE?

Q. Our spayed female German shepherd is incontinent. Our vet told us there are two medications that should stop her leaking urine. One is a hormone supplement and the other is a drug called Proin. Do you have an opinion about which is the better choice?

A. Your letter is well-timed because I'm going through a similar scenario with our daughter and her young spayed female dog. There is actually a third method – surgery – but it is not always successful and sometimes the results are only temporary. Proin acts by indirectly stimulating the bladder sphincter, the smooth muscle at the neck of the bladder. It must be given twice daily. The other drug is DES or a similar synthetic estrogen. This type works by making the sphincter muscle more sensitive to the nerves that cause it to contract. Either drug may work and occasionally they have to be given together for better control of the problem. Restlessness is sometimes seen as a side effect with Proin. Side effects from DES and similar drugs are not common at the low dose used to control urinary incontinence. Too high a dose of DES is recognized by signs of being in heat – even if your dog is spayed. These signs include vaginal bleeding and attracting and being receptive to male dogs. Because control can often be achieved with just one to three pills a week, a lot of dog owners prefer this treatment.

The 43-year-old comedy star – who made headlines for escorting an 87-year-old “homeless” lady to his movie premiere – changed his life forever after walking home tipsy one night in New York City.

“I’d gotten into the whiskey and was listening to my headphones,” he recently told Conan O’Brien.

Suddenly a Jaguar cut him off while he was crossing the street, and he angrily walloped the car on its side as it sped by.

Zach kept walking until he felt a tap on his shoulder.

“I turn around and there’s TWO 6-foot-6 guys. And they both, at the same time, spit in my face.

“I remember reaching into a trash can and grabbing a beer bottle, and saying to myself out loud, ‘Nobody spits in Zach Galifianakis’ face!’”

“I threw the beer bottle at the car...and it missed,” he told Conan.

Fortunately for Zach, the driver kept going.

He first met her in 1994 when he was a struggling comic and she was barely surviving on tips she got for assisting people at the Laundromat he used.

The two became friends but fell out of touch when the first “Hangover” movie rocketed Zach to fame. Then, two years ago, he learned his old pal had become homeless.

Heartbroken, the incredibly generous performer got her an apartment and pays the rent.

Now, thanks to her famous guardian angel, the Santa Monica senior says she even has a publicist and she’s seeking $5,000 per interview.

“I love Zach and will never be able to thank him enough for everything he’s done,” Mimi told THE ENQUIRER. “And being with him at the ‘Hangover III’ premiere was one of the best nights of my life!”

THE ENQUIRER knows how to engage readers!

We broke the news of “Hangover” star Justin Bartha’s engagement to his sexy trainer Lia Smith back in mid-May – and only now are other publications finally catching up.

The ENQUIRER revealed exclusively that Justin popped the question to the gorgeous Los Angeles Pilates instructor after he realized LOTS of other guys were competing to win her heart.

The actor, who’s been dating Lia for nearly a year, rushed to put a ring on her finger.

The lovers were keeping the engagement quiet as they tried to figure out the perfect wedding date later this year, but – as always – THE ENQUIRER was in the loop.

As soon as we ran the story, a long list of competitors reported on it, too. And some even had the nerve to claim they broke the news. But they couldn’t fool our readers who know that THE ENQUIRER gets the big stories first – and gets them right!

Miranda's

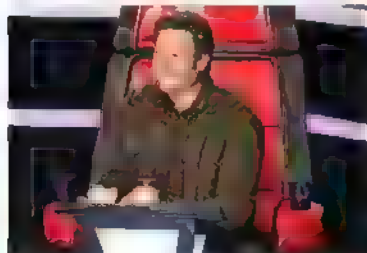

NASTY

MIRANDA LAMBERT has launched a secret plan to save her marriage to her heartthrob hubby Blake Shelton!

The 29-year-old firecracker has already confronted a young singer she suspected of cheating with Blake, and insiders say she now has enlisted "spies" to keep tabs on her handsome spouse.

But friends fear it will be impossible to tame country singer Blake, who's become a crossover superstar since signing on to be a coach on the hit NBC singing competition "The Voice." Blake has denied that he has cheated but told a network morning show he loves the rumors because it means he's popular.

MIRANDA KNOWS HER marriage is just one cheating night away from imploding," revealed a close source. "Any girl that comes sniffin' around her husband will have to answer to her in all her fury."

Budding pop singer/songwriter Cady Groves, 23, found out what Miranda's wrath feels like when she touched off a cheating scandal with Blake.

The rising star enjoyed a flirtatious Twitter relationship with Blake for nearly two years, and he even appeared in Cady's debut music video, ironically named "This Little Girl."

Alarmed, Miranda flew into action.

"She felt like this young gal was making a fool of her and a mockery of her marriage to Blake," disclosed an insider.

She phoned the "other" woman and let her have it in a shocking showdown.

"Miranda told her point-blank to stay away from her husband if she knew what was good for her," divulged the source.

"Cady sounded shocked, denied everything and complimented Miranda, telling her how much she admired her. But Miranda just cut her off, saying she's dealt with girls like her before and she better stop it like yesterday."

A shaken Cady quickly called Blake and asked: "What should I do?" said the close source.

"Blake told her, 'If you value your life, I'd stop tweeting me.'"

Although Cady and Blake, 36, both claim their relationship is innocent, others say they've been hooking up for the past two years — and a miffed Miranda has reportedly called her lanky husband “just a big ol’ horn dog.”

She believes Blake minds his p’s and q’s while taping his show in Los Angeles, as sources say she’s told pals: “At least he’s in one place and I’ve got spies on him out there.”

But her biggest fear is the months they will spend apart touring the country.

“The Voice” has its season finale in mid-June and then Blake hits the road. Miranda will be touring as well. They can go weeks without seeing each other, and Miranda’s suspicions creep in, said the close source.

Her fears are nothing new. Insiders reveal she had doubts about Blake’s fidelity from the beginning. In fact, although Miranda denies it, there have long been rumors that Blake’s relationship with Miranda started with a fling while he was married to his high school sweetheart Kaynette Williams. Blake and Miranda ended up dating for six years before she finally “took a leap of faith” and got hitched.

Sadly, as The ENQUIRER revealed last month, friends don’t give the couple much of a chance to make it. Confided one pal: “They are two ships passing in the night, drifting further and further apart.”

Agreed the close source: “Miranda is facing an uphill battle. I just don’t think their marriage is going to survive.” by ROGER HITS

EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW

TAMRA BANS 'WIVES' FROM WEDDING

REAL Housewives of Orange County beauty Tamra Barney reveals she's booted her co-star Alexis Bellino from her list of wedding guests.

And in an exclusive ENQUIRER interview, Tamra adds that Alexis may not be the only familiar face absent when she walks the aisle with Eddie Judge in June. "Let's just say not all the Housewives will be invited," declared feisty Tamra.

WHEN ASKED ABOUT VICKI Gunvalson, Tamra replied: "Um, maybe." But when the subject of inviting Alexis was broached, the 45-year-old blonde snapped: "No!"

Tamra and Alexis have butted heads many times in the past. Last season, fitness studio owner Tamra called her surgically endowed rival "Jesus Jugs."

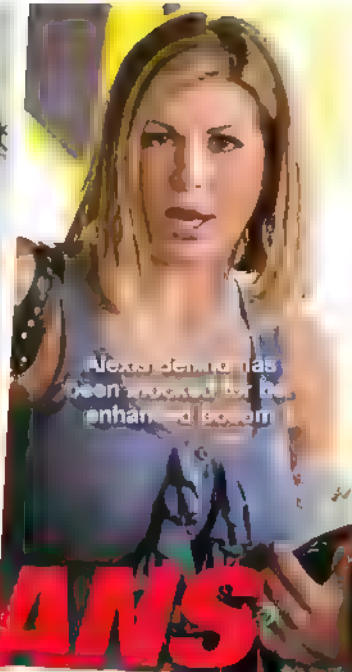

And a shocking incident occurred on the April 22 show when Vicki brought Alexis to a dinner party celebrating the opening of Tamra's new gym. Alexis called the fitness buff a bully, and Tamra went through the roof and ordered her to "get the * out!"

"Vicki had been trying to smooth things over," said a source close to Tamra and Eddie. "She was hoping to broker an end to the feud so that Tamra would invite Alexis to the wedding."

"But Alexis just couldn't resist taking another shot at Tamra — and that ended any chance of getting all the 'Housewives' together."

"Both Tamra and Eddie want nothing to do with Alexis."

Meanwhile, the happy pair are staying focused on their big day. They held joint bachelorette and bachelor celebrations May 18 in Las Vegas. Guests first made waves at The Palazzo's Azure Luxury Pool, then they dined and did some gambling before finishing up at a strip club. The bride- and groom-to-be were joined by "RHOOC" co-stars Heather and Terry Dubrow. But "Housewives" Gretchen Rossi, Alexis, Vicki and Lydia McLaughlin were noticeably missing.

Said the source: "This wedding may be tearing the cast apart — and Tamra loves it."

When Peggy Lou Hall saw what was left of her trailer after the tornado struck, her heart sank. She'd been at a friend's house when the storm hit and hadn't been able to get home to save her beloved 3-year-old miniature Sheltie, Sadie. "I really love that dog," says Peggy, 47. "I thought she'd gotten killed for sure, but she wasn't there."

Peggy was devastated, but her heartbreak soon turned to joy when she found that Sadie had survived – 20 feet up in a tree! It took a tall ladder – and a LOT of coaxing – to bring the terrified pup down. Rescuers brought Sadie to the local animal shelter, where she and Peggy were reunited.

"I just busted down bawling," says Peggy. "In spite of losing my home, it was the happiest day of my life."

PLUCKED

AMID the stories of heartbreak and devastation spawned by the monster tornado that ripped through Moore, Okla., on May 20, there were also tales of heroes and survivors, of perseverance and courage. In the aftermath of the tragedy, The ENQUIRER exclusively reveals the heartwarming and emotional stories of the superstorm's OTHER survivors – family pets.

Thousands of animals – from dogs and cats to horses and pigs – were left stranded and defenseless when the ferocious twister barreled through Oklahoma packing winds of more than 200 mph. Here are some of the most amazing tales of survival – and of the happy family reunions that followed.

by JOHN BLOSSER

jblosser@nationalenquirer.com

The happy owners were soon reunited with their four-legged pals and it was smiles all around.

As soon as the tornado ended, search teams from the National Disaster Search Dog Foundation hit the ground with trained dogs Justice and Gunny, hunting through the rubble for signs of life.

Tulsa firefighters Jeff Leon and Adrienne Selba were looking for storm casualties with their dogs – who are only trained to locate humans – when they heard whimpering coming from under the wreckage of a collapsed home. Kate Horwick, program manager with the SDF, told The ENQUIRER the firefighters "began digging through the rubble, pulling away planks and roofing material, and found two dogs who had managed to survive the tornado."

One of the dogs, named Sunny, had an ID tag on her collar, and the team contacted the owners to let them know their pups had been found.

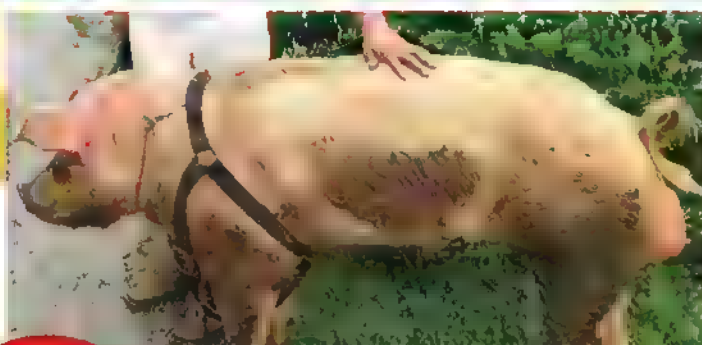

The happy owners were soon reunited with their four-legged pals and it was smiles all around. The rescuers did a great job!

PIG
did fly

If you thought pigs couldn't fly, you haven't met Frosty. This 450-pound porker was found squatting on a rooftop, where he'd been tossed like a rag doll during the tornado.

"He managed to survive up there completely unscathed," Hadley told The ENQUIRER.

"Because Frosty was so large, his owner couldn't get him inside when the storm came, and when the wind hit, he went flying! This is one BIG pig; and he was totally stuck up there. Everyone was puzzled about what to do about it, with some people suggesting using a crane or a front-end loader to get the pig down."

In the end, the smart swine solved his own dilemma, skidding down a plank of wood that had been propped against the roof like a kid on a playground sliding board.

Although his owner's home was destroyed, a kind neighbor offered to take Frosty in.

"Now he's just fine," says Hadley. "Frosty the Flying Pig is in hog heaven."

Maeghan Hadley of the 1 Day Ranch Animal Rescue in Shawnee, Okla., was searching for signs of life in a destroyed housing development, hunting through the rubble, when she heard the faint sound of a kitten mewling. "We dug for almost an hour through planks of splintered wood, metal roofing and concrete until we finally got to the bottom – and there was a small gray kitten, trembling in fear," she recalls.

"We treated her with antibiotics, and it was obvious that the kitten had been there for days, starving, because she started eating everything in sight.

An entire house had fallen down on this kitten, but her only injury was a cut on her paw. It was a miracle that she survived!"

The brave little kitten earned an appropriate name – Stormy. She's healing up nicely and is now looking for a new home, says Hadley.

One of the most touching tableaux to emerge in the tornado's aftermath was that of two frightened and dazed terriers, still wearing their collars, stranded on top of a coffee table amid an ocean of wreckage. They were two of the lucky ones – rescuers brought the pups to a shelter, where they were waiting to be reunited with their owners.

WHAT'S UP WITH KEANU?

Screen hunk looking like 'a bum'

"SPEED" star Keanu Reeves had better hit the brakes and take a good look at himself!

The onetime matinee idol appeared bloated, boozy and out of shape as he set sail for the recent Cannes Film Festival, guzzling champagne with a mystery blonde aboard the yacht "Odessa" on May 19.

"I BARELY RECOGNIZED KEANU," SAID AN insider. "He was disheveled and unshaven as if he had just awakened. His clothes were so rumpled he looked like a bum."

The 48-year-old star has embarked on a second career as a director and apparently no longer cares about his appearance.

"I think he believes colleagues won't take him seriously if he still looks like a screen hunk," said the source. "He's gotten very jowly and unkempt."

Keanu attended Cannes to promote his directorial debut, "Man of Tai Chi," a film loosely based on the life of stuntman Tiger Chen.

The main character, played by Chen, is a martial arts expert struggling to maintain traditional values in modern society.

Keanu plays a villain who lures him into underground fighting.

"If Keanu's directing career takes off, he'd consider giving up acting entirely," revealed the source.

That's not surprising since the actor hasn't had a hit since 2003, when he scored with both the "Matrix Revolutions" and "Something's Gotta Give."

Noted the source: "It's been a long time since his glory days in 'Bill & Ted's Excellent Adventure' and 'Point Break.'"

Meanwhile, Keanu says he's been eager to try directing for a long time but admits his motivation is "also tied to getting older."

I RESOLVE PROBLEMS

SJP marriage BACK ON TRACK

SARAH JESSICA PARKER and hubby Matthew Broderick's troubled marriage is back on track, thanks to an unlikely angel—American pop artist John Wesley.

The 84-year-old painter dated Matthew's mother, Patricia, for six years before she died in 2003. And while Matthew and John were never particularly close during Patricia's life, they've bonded over their shared loss since her death.

A source tells THE ENQUIRER that Matthew, 51, now sees John as a father figure and is grateful for the way he cared for Patricia at the end of her life. To show his appreciation, he and wife Sarah Jessica, 48, are helping to support John financially.

"Matthew and Sarah Jessica feel he's an important addition to the family and a brilliant grandfather figure to their kids," said the source.

"The children adore him and love helping him paint. John doesn't have any family of his own, so he fits right into the Broderick clan. But it's the perspective John has given the couple about what really matters in life that has helped heal their troubled union."

The "WarGames" actor and his "Sex and the City" sweetheart began dating in 1993 and wed four years later. They have three kids together—James, 10, and 3-year-old twins Loretta and Tabitha.

IN 2008, IT WAS REPORTED THAT Matthew had cheated and their marriage was on the skids—but the source says John's involvement in their lives has helped turn things around.

"Matthew's fallen in love with Sarah Jessica all over again," the source added. "This situation with John has brought home how important it is to have a loving and caring partner in life. He's given them a new appreciation for the 20 years they've been together."

Mom Patricia

FACING a bitter divorce battle with hubby John Travolta, a stressed-out Kelly Preston is at her wit's end – and friends fear she may do something drastic!

The 50-year-old beauty is terrified she'll lose custody of the couple's two children to John in a potential divorce, sources say, and she collapsed after months of arguing over her husband's gay scandals and their $220 million fortune.

"Things between Kelly and John are getting uglier by the day, and Kelly is cracking under the strain," confided a source.

"While John is desperate to keep up the facade of a happy family, Kelly can't take the lies anymore.

"She gamely played along when John dragged her and their little boy Benjamin to Australia in early April. But she totally lost it a few days later during a vacation in Hawaii.

"Kelly was talking to a friend on the phone about her issues with John when she broke the news that a divorce is probably imminent.

"BUT THEN KELLY'S FRIEND scared the life out of her by suggesting that if John gets angry enough over her leaving him, he could try to get custody of Benjamin and their daughter Ella Bleu.

"Kelly burst into tears, collapsed into a chair and started wailing, 'I can't take this! He'll destroy me if I leave him! My life is over!' Kelly moaned about not knowing how she'd carry on if her kids were taken away."

Since marrying the "Saturday Night Fever" star in 1991, Kelly has basically put her career on hold to be a wife and mother to their son Jett – who tragically died at the age of 16 in 2009 – 13-year-old Ella Bleu and Benjamin, 2.

"Kelly's life has revolved around John and the kids for years," said the source.

"And she's faced one embarrassment after another over John's alleged gay hook-ups with men. It's absolutely humiliating for Kelly.

"But John's a bully and he's

The actor has been dogged by gay rumors for years

JOHN TRAVOLTA'S WIFE AT BRINK

Kelly Preston COLLAPSES!

■ Dirty divorce taking its toll

■ Losing weight & struggling to cope

■ Her desperate cry for help made it clear to Kelly that if she files divorce papers, he'll unleash the full wrath of his high-powered legal team on her.

"Kelly is already suffering from insomnia. She barely sleeps four hours a night, and sometimes she's so down that she forgets to eat.

"She's dropped a lot of weight, and some days Kelly can't even motivate herself to leave the house. It's a very sad situation."

As The ENQUIRER has reported, the couple's 21-year marriage hit rock bottom over the "Pulp Fiction" star's indifference to Kelly's sputtering career and his relationship with Rav Holly, a 42-year-old obsessed male fan and photographer with a violent past.

BUT SOURCES SAY THE BIGGEST issue behind the couple's marriage problems remains a string of lurid gay sex scandals that have exploded around the 59-year-old actor.

Several masseurs have accused Travolta of sexual battery, and two of the men actually filed lawsuits against him. Travolta's attorney vehemently denied the claims. A website reportedly uncovered documents that it claims reveal Travolta's insurer paid $84,000 in hush money to the men.

In another shocker, Travolta's former personal pilot, Doug Gotterba, told The ENQUIRER in a no-holds-barred exclusive interview that he was the actor's gay lover for six years.

The ENQUIRER also interviewed

John and Kelly, with kids Benjamin and Ella, vacationed in Australia in April. At right, Kelly in Hawaii a few days later with Benjamin

John's former personal assistant Joan Edwards, who said she worked for him from 1978 to 1994 and told us: "Of course I knew he was gay."

Adding to Kelly's woes is the stress of juggling her family drama with work.

"Kelly is stressed to the max," said another source. "She's barely holding it together. She put her heart and soul into filming (the sitcom pilot) 'Keep Calm and Karey On,' and by the time it was over, she was wrung out."

A third source added: "Kelly is most upset because she's stood behind him all these years and looked the other way over his gay trysts. She even showed up on cue when he needed it to seem like they are still a happy family."

AS THE ENQUIRER REPORTED, John tried to convince Kelly to pass on filming "Keep Calm and Karey On" in Los Angeles because he preferred her to act the part of a stay-at-home mom in their Orlando, Fla.-area mansion.

She headed to California anyway, and while ABC passed on the sitcom, "Kelly has been champing at the bit to re-establish herself in Hollywood," said the source.

"Especially with her marriage in tatters, Kelly wants to have her own career and income to fall back on. But John prefers to keep her like a caged bird, and the emotional strain finally caught up with her. After her frightening collapse, she took it easy and rested for a few days.

"But with divorce looming, Kelly realizes the worst is still ahead."

KELLY RELAPSE FEARS

GUTSY Kelly Preston has kicked booze and drug habits, but pals fear the stress of her crumbling marriage could trigger a relapse.

The 50-year-old actress has admitted that her addictions nearly ruined her life when she was in her late teens and early 20s.

"By the way, it's not true that pot does not lead to other drugs - it does," Preston said. "I started drinking. I started doing coke (cocaine), quaaludes, a lot of different drugs - mushrooms, you name it."

"It was a...spiral that went on for years."

KELLY CREDITS A SCIENTOLOGY-BASED program for helping her kick drugs. She also confessed to a longtime battle with booze.

"There were times where I drank too much for sure," she said in a TV interview, adding, "Now I don't drink anymore."

While Kelly's been clean and sober for years, an addiction expert says former users face a significant chance of relapse, particularly during times of stress.

"People under stress automatically reach for whatever habit helps them feel better, be it taking a drink or a pill or even exercising," Dr. Gregory Smith, a Los Angeles-based addiction expert and producer of the documentary, "American Addict" who does not treat Preston, told The ENQUIRER.

"People who have battled addictions are no different. But they kid themselves into thinking that they can have just one drink or one pill and not spiral into a major relapse. Addiction is in their DNA. That doesn't change."

Pals worry she may SLIP BACK INTO BOOZE AND DRUGS

And with a divorce from hubby John Travolta looming, Kelly is facing major stress, a source says. "Kelly has had the weight of the world on her shoulders for a long time," a source close to the couple told The ENQUIRER.

"It's amazing that she hasn't crumbled already. But the feeling is that she's near her breaking point, and when she hits it she could relapse on drugs."

"There's a possibility that she could start using again - and that's what her friends are worried about now."

A hefty Damon filming "The Informant!" in Hawaii in 2008

Matt Damon GIVING UP DIETING

AFTER counting calories for years to stay in action hero shape, Matt Damon has vowed his next screen role will be "doughnut friendly," a pal says.

"For the last two years, Matt has literally had to watch every morsel he put in his mouth," a close family friend told The ENQUIRER.

"HE'S ADMITTED TO PALS THAT he's sick to death of dieting. He says he wants to find a project where he doesn't have to count every single calorie.

"And if he can't find a project like that, Matt has said he'll take a break from filming. That's how serious he is."

The 42-year-old Oscar winner - famous for his movie role as amnesiac assassin Jason Bourne - dieted religiously while filming the Liberace biopic "Behind the Candelabra" and the upcoming sci fi thriller "Elysium," said the source.

And he's still working hard to stay in shape while filming "The Monuments Men" with George Clooney. But the father of four daughters has admitted his greatest challenge was packing on 30 pounds in 2008 for "The Informant!" and then shedding the weight for reshoots on "Green Zone."

"To slim down, Matt ran five miles on the beach every day, cut out carbs and ate a lot of tuna, chicken and almonds," said the pal.

But that kind of regimen has gotten old for the actor.

"Matt's ready to step back from the hunk roles," said the source. "He'd much rather eat doughnuts and look like all the other dads picking up their kids at karate class."

PLUSSIZE "Moneyball" star Jonah Hill has gone back to the only woman who's loved him through thick and thin - ex-girlfriend Jordan Klein. The two were spotted kissing on a North Hollywood street recently, more than a year and a half after they broke up.

"It's no surprise that Jonah is getting back together with Jordan," said a source. "They've known each other for more than a decade, and she never cared whether he had money or looks."

"SHE'S THE ONLY WOMAN WHO'S LOVED him regardless of fame, fortune or fat. Jonah and Jordan first met while they were high school students in Los Angeles. They started dating in 2008, when Jonah was at his chunkiest. Pals thought they were headed for the altar and were shocked when the couple called it quits in late 2011, not long after Jonah shed a whopping 40 pounds for his role in "21 Jump Street."

A few months later, Jonah, 29, hooked up with Ali Hoffman, daughter of "Tootsie" star Dustin Hoffman. As The ENQUIRER reported, Jonah and Ali had known each other for several years, but Ali's interest in the "Superbad" star turned romantic after his stunning transformation from fat to fit.

Ali worked out with Jonah and encouraged him to eat well in an effort to keep him on the right track, but the actor struggled to stay slim. And as he packed on the pounds again, his relationship with Ali started to fizzle out. They split in September. But now he's rebounded with his ex-flame.

"Jordan loves him regardless of any faults," added the source. "She's a wonderful woman."

Robert Lee Burton Jr. testifies as ex-girlfriend Melissa Dohme beams happily at fiancé Cameron Hill

After what I went through, I thought I'd never be able to have a romantic relationship again.

Melissa Dohme beams happily at fiancé Cameron Hill

LOVE AT DEATH'S DOOR

Brutally stabbed blonde FALLS FOR PARAMEDIC WHO SAVED HER LIFE

AS she lay covered in blood after being stabbed 32 times, Melissa Dohme could never have imagined that her ordeal was actually the beginning of a fairytale romance.

But the firefighter-paramedic who saved her life, Cameron Hill, turned out to be her real-life Prince Charming – and now he's her fiancé!

"When I look back on that night, I can't think it was bad anymore because I met Cameron," said Melissa, 21.

Her nightmare unfolded early on Jan. 24, 2012, when her ex-boyfriend Robert Lee Burton Jr., showed up at her Clearwater, Fla., home begging for a chance to see her.

They'd dated for two years, and Melissa agreed to meet him outside. He asked to hug her, and when they did, he stabbed her in the neck with a pocket knife, police say.

MELISSA, WHO'S JUST 5-FOOT-1, screamed as the 6-foot-4, 245-pound creep repeatedly stabbed her until she fell to the sidewalk, according to authorities.

Then Burton allegedly went to his truck, grabbed a bigger knife and stabbed and slashed Melissa with it.

Fortunately, a passing couple heard her cries for help. While they rushed to her aid and called 911, Burton allegedly sped off.

Meanwhile, Cameron, a 17-year veteran of the Clearwater fire department, answered the 911 call.

"Melissa's injuries were horrendous," he recalled. "She was literally covered in blood. It was so bad I couldn't tell that she was a blonde."

He helped stabilize her and then got her into a helicopter that airlifted her to a nearby hospital.

"I don't know why, but I knew I'd see her again," he said.

After arriving at the hospital, Melissa flatlined four times and received 12 pints of blood. She had a fractured skull, a fractured nose and lost a tooth.

"It's a miracle I'm still here," she said.

Melissa has recovered, but her face and arms are scarred and she can't blink her right eye or smile fully due to nerve damage. In October, she spoke about her experience at a church. Cameron, 38, was in the audience.

"I was awestruck," he said. "She was so strong, so determined – and so beautiful."

He sought her out and gently hugged her.

"When he hugged me, I had butterflies in my stomach," she recalled. "I was weirdly giddy. I had this feeling about him."

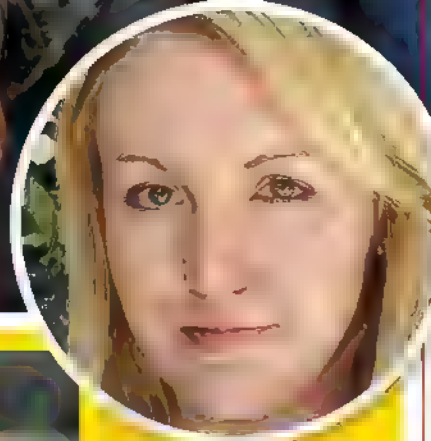

They met again a month later, and Cameron asked Melissa for a date. They're now inseparable and plan to marry.

But her 21-year-old ex faces a far different future. Burton has been charged with attempted first-degree murder. His trial is set for August and, if convicted, he could face a long time behind bars.

"After what I went through, I thought I'd never be able to have a romantic relationship again," said Melissa, who's studying to be a nurse. "But now, thanks to Cameron, I've found true love."

STAR JONES SLAMS RIVAL MO'NIQUE

IN an ugly battle of the bulge, Star Jones has accused Mo'Nique of cheating to slim down!

The "Precious" Oscar winner admits she once weighed 300 pounds and claims she's shed 80 of them the old-fashioned way – by working out.

But Star – who dropped 160 pounds after gastric bypass surgery in 2003 – isn't buying it, say sources. "Star doesn't think Mo'Nique could possibly be losing all that weight naturally," a source told The ENQUIRER.

"She's commented to a few friends that she thinks Mo'Nique must have had something done because she's looking so good so fast. Star said that from her own personal experience, something seems fishy."

MO'NIQUE INSISTS SHE'S BEEN on her healthy weight-loss journey for the past three years and is down to 218 pounds. The 45 year-old comedian and former sitcom star of "The Parkers" has even been documenting her weight-loss success on Twitter.

"I tweet every morning about my workouts because I want women to see – especially us big women – that you don't have to let them cut you and suck it out, you don't have to let them staple you up, you don't have to let them give you a pill, you don't have to let them put a band around your organs," Mo'Nique said in an interview.

SARA EVANS feels the need...the need for speed!

The multiplatinum country beauty, 42, was busted for speeding in Tennessee in mid-April while driving back to Nashville from her home in Alabama to complete work on her new album.

The "A Little Bit Stronger" singer was actually on the phone giving an interview when she was pulled over by the police!

"I know the fans are getting a little antsy for new songs, because so am I," Evans told a reporter on her cell phone.

Then, she cried: "Crap! I'm going to get pulled over. I'll call you back."

SHE WAS GIVEN A $250 CITATION. Later, Evans, who goes on tour this summer, called the reporter back to finish the interview.

Despite the fine, life is looking up for the singer, who weathered a nasty split from first husband Craig Schelske in 2006. In her divorce petition, Sara made a number of allegations. Schelske denied the allegations and fought back. He filed a $20 million slander lawsuit against Sara's divorce attorneys after one of them stated that there were photographs to back up the allegations in the divorce petition.

Sara's ex-husband, Craig Schelske

Schelske received an undisclosed settlement from the attorney who also issued a statement expressing "regret" that his actions "caused Mr. Schelske harm in any way."

In 2007, Sara's ex-nanny Alison Clinton Lee and her husband Chris filed a $3 million defamation and slander suit against Sara and her attorneys over claims made in the divorce petition. Lee reportedly received a settlement of more than $500,000. In June 2008, Evans married Jay Barker, a sports radio show host and former University of Alabama quarterback.

New Weight Loss Study Reveals Green Coffee Bean Extract Really Works!

Our proprietary exclusive 5 blend extract maximizes your weight loss so fat melts away!

Professional doctors, talk show hosts and health gurus have sung their praises on national TV. It's been all over the news and the internet. But despite all the media buzz, green coffee bean extract's value as a dieter's new "best friend" may actually have the hard scientific evidence behind it to justify all the fantastic claims! And for anyone who has ever struggled to "divorce their love handles" – or jumped from diet to diet with less than wonderful results to show for it, the benefits of green coffee bean extract is good news indeed!

How does it work?
Surprisingly,
it's not the caffeine!

While it's true that caffeine is a stimulant – and can curb your appetite – the truth is that it's Chlorogenic Acid that's primarily responsible for green coffee bean extract's weight loss effects. Chlorogenic Acid works by inhibiting the release of glucose in the body while at the same time boosting the metabolism or the "burning" of fat in the liver. These two mechanisms combined work together to inhibit the absorption of fat and eliminate weight gain.

of Body Fat Gone
In Just 12 Weeks!

In a recent study, 16 subjects lost an average of 17.6 pounds over 12 weeks. That's over 10% of their body weight! These results were seen without changing calorie intake or exercise levels. Imagine how much MORE weight they could have lost with just a few diet modifications and a modest increase in exercise?

OUR NATURAL INGREDIENTS

- African Mango – David Jeffery, Editor of Body for Life, called African Mango "the best natural fat loss remedy I've come across in 25 years!"
- Green Tea – Used for centuries to promote good health, green tea is a rich source of antioxidants. It stimulates your metabolism, blocks fat absorption, supports cardiovascular & immune health.
- Iodine – Supports healthy metabolism and thyroid function.
- Chromium – Supports healthy glucose metabolism and blood sugar levels.

CLINICAL STUDIES SHOW THAT GREEN COFFEE BEAN EXTRACT MAY:

- ✓ Burn excess fat & calories
- ✓ Decrease fat absorption
- ✓ Boost metabolism
- ✓ Increase energy
- ✓ Help balance blood sugar

And it does all of this even without any major lifestyle changes!

Doesn't coffee yield the same effect?

In fact, it doesn't. When coffee beans are roasted to give them that distinct color, aroma and flavor, it removes the Chlorogenic Acid, which is the key to healthy weight loss. Green Coffee Beans, in contrast, are un-roasted, have little aroma, are bitter, and contain over 50% Chlorogenic Acid, along with several other healthful antioxidants.

That's why Green Coffee Bean extract is now being made available commercially, for dieters who could use a powerful and proven metabolic boost. You can find the purest, best-quality form of green coffee bean extract in a new weight loss formula called Trim IQ.

BAD FOR HEART, BAD FOR BRAIN

★ Heart disease risk factors do more than harm your heart—they also slow your brain's ability to function.

Dutch researchers studied more than 3,700 adults, ages 32 to 82, and found that those who had heart risk factors, especially smoking and diabetes, performed 50 percent worse on brain-function tests compared to those with the lowest heart disease risk.

The link between heart disease risk and brain function was evident among adults of all ages. "Young adults may think the consequences of smoking or being overweight are years down the road, but they aren't," warns Dr. Hanneke Joosten of University Medical Center in Groningen, The Netherlands. "What's bad for the heart is also bad for the brain."

★ In a breakthrough study, researchers found that people living with chronic back pain could be cured with a simple and inexpensive course of antibiotics rather than surgery.

The research involved 162 adults suffering from long-term lower back pain caused by herniated discs—and those who took antibiotics for 100 days experienced significantly less pain and improved movement.

Scientists found that many of the worst cases were due to bacterial infections that infiltrate the discs.

The finding could help up to 40 percent of those with long-term back pain, according to Danish scientist Hanne Albert, who adds: "I can't tell you how many people have given me hugs and told me I have given them their life back."

RELIEVE CRIPPLING BACK PAIN

Exercise helps lower breast cancer risk

Physical activity can lower the chances of getting breast cancer. As little as 30 minutes of aerobic exercise five times a week can make a big difference, say University of Minnesota researchers.

"Ours is the first study to show that aerobic exercise influences the way our bodies break down estrogens to produce more of the 'good' metabolites that lower breast cancer risk," notes UM professor Mindy S. Kurzer. "Exercise, known to improve heart health, is also likely to help prevent breast cancer by altering estrogen metabolism."

Banish DARK EYE CIRCLES

★ A remarkable new product can help you erase the dark circles under your eyes!

Hylexin, a cream containing a powerful combination of plant-based bioflavonoids, peptides and botanical extracts, can radically reduce dark circles, discoloration and lower-lid puffiness, according to the manufacturers.

A small dab applied twice a day can make a big difference, peeling years off your appearance.

Produced by skincare giant Bremenn Labs, Hylexin can be found at Walmart.

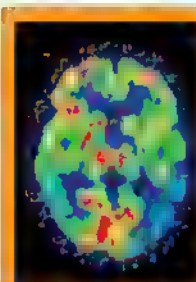

★ Scientists have reversed memory loss in animal brain cells, paving the way for human studies!

Researchers simulated memory impairment in sea snail nerve cells and then developed a technique for training the cells to compensate for memory loss.

Although much work remains to be done, neuroscientists at the University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston believe this approach could help people with memory loss associated with brain disorders such as Alzheimer's.

"Our results suggest a new strategy for treatment of cognitive impairment," declares John Byrne, chairman of neurobiology and anatomy at the center.

America's Supernanny.

'Supernanny' IS CHILD CARE NIGHTMARE!

TV star's day care centers SLAPPED
WITH DOZENS OF VIOLATIONS

"A MERICA'S Supernanny" Deborah Tillman deserves a time-out for bad behavior!

Public records reveal that the lady who seems to have all the answers when doling out parenting advice owns a chain of day care centers that have been besieged by code violations and complaints.

"Deborah's child care centers are literally a hazard to the children's health," blasted a source.

The show is already struggling to pull in decent ratings. It was launched by Lifetime in a bid to capitalize on the onetime popularity of the British "Supernanny" show starring Jo Frost, which made a successful leap to U.S. TV on ABC, and now with "Family S.O.S." on TLC.

But Tillman has yet to come close to matching Frost's popularity with American viewers, and she now faces some bad publicity. Her three Happy Home Child Learning Centers in Virginia have been slapped with dozens of violations over the past five years from the state's department of social services, and department records show numerous complaints - and a source tells The ENQUIRER that's just the tip of the iceberg.

"THERE IS NOT ENOUGH STAFF TO properly supervise the kids, they don't wash their hands after changing diapers or properly sanitize the changing areas," said the source. "Some teachers have even threatened to throw kids' artwork away unless they behave."

In "America's Supernanny: Family Lockdown," Deborah visits the homes of families struggling with tough parenting issues. But despite her know-it-all on-air attitude, state records show that Deborah's day care centers are under close scrutiny, and in early May, Deborah informed parents she was shutting one of them down. Said the insider: "Deborah obviously doesn't practice what she preaches on TV."

Boston bombings

Regarding "Evil Killers' Sick Lives Exposed!" (May 6): How horrid what the people in Boston suffered at the hands of those two pieces of crap! I feel so bad about the deaths and loss of limbs suffered by many. Thankfully these two were stopped in time to prevent more slayings.

HOW TO PLAY

You must fill in every empty square in the Sudoku grid. There's no right way of going about this, but there is only ever one solution. The big grid is split into nine mini-grids. There are nine rows running left to right and nine columns running down. In every row, you must have each of the numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9. These can be in any order. The same applies to columns and mini-grids: place every number 1 through 9 in each column and in each mini-grid.

BEN AFFLECK stuck his foot in his mouth at the Oscars three months ago – and his wife still won't let him forget it!

The 40-year-old actor/director called his marriage to Jennifer Garner "work" while accepting the Best Picture award for his thriller "Argo," and despite later expressing his love for her on national TV, pals say she remains miffed.

"He felt he had wronged Jennifer," said a friend.

SO HE TRIED TO make amends during a recent hosting gig on "Saturday Night Live."

"Ben is always worried he's going to lose Jennifer and is still begging her for forgiveness," continued the friend. "So he asked 'SNL' producers if he could make his Oscar speech the subject of his monologue and bring Jennifer onstage with him."

During that May 18 monologue, a ruffled Ben comically stumbled over his words. But Jennifer, 41, clarified what he'd meant when he said their nearly eight-year marriage took a lot of work.

"It's a way that we talk privately about how committed we are to our marriage," the actress and mom of three told the audience. Then she looked at Ben and said: "Don't know why you had to share it live with a billion people!"

WHILE THE TWO joked about the gaffe on TV, pals say Ben is still kicking himself about it.

"It's been eating at him," confided the friend. "He was at his lowest point both personally and careerwise when he met her. And since then, things have been wonderful."

Despite Ben's blunder, the source says: "Jen isn't going anywhere."

'ANGEL' RESCUES BOY FROM GATOR

Stranger HELPS
SAVE 6-YEAR-OLD
— THEN VANISHES

A vicious alligator like this one nearly ended young Joey's life

Amazingly, Joey Welch escaped the powerful gator jaws with just minor injuries

A BRAVE stranger helped desperate Joe Welch save his son from the deadly jaws of an 8-foot-long alligator, and now the grateful dad would like to thank the Good Samaritan.

But the mystery man Joe calls his son's "angel" has vanished without a trace!

Joe's heart-stopping ordeal took place at the Arthur R. Marshall Loxahatchee National Wildlife Refuge, near Boynton Beach, Fla., on April 19, during what was supposed to be a fun outing with his 6-year-old son, Joey.

"I READ AN AD IN THE PAPER about canoe trips and I thought it would be a cool thing to do with my boy," said Joe, a 49-year-old real estate photographer from nearby Pompano Beach.

"I even researched it online to see if it was safe. I found that if we wanted to observe the gators, we had to paddle quietly. If they got too close, we should bang the paddle on the canoe to when Joe turned his back to pay, little Joey bolted to the water's edge — and fell in. Immediately, a huge alligator sprang from the murky water and latched onto the boy's right arm. "I heard his terrible screams," said Joe. "Without thinking, I leaped into the water up to my waist and grabbed Joey. I knew I couldn't win a tug of war with the alligator, so I gripped Joey with my left arm and started beating the gator on the head with my fist. But it was like hitting a giant cinder block. It didn't even faze the gator."

Dad Joe pounded the gator with his hand to little effect

That's when Joe heard someone shouting to "pull him out!" That man, Joe later learned, was a tourist from Spain named Adrian Silva Chavez.

"He screamed, 'Pull him out of the water!'" recalled Joe. "I was afraid that my son's arm would get ripped off, but the stranger kept on yelling, 'Pull him out, pull him out!'"

"Then I found out why. As I pulled Joey, the alligator, still latched on to his arm, came out of the water, exposing his soft underbelly. Adrian started kicking there hard. Once, twice, three times, four times — and suddenly the alligator released its grip."

Joe says that he lost track of Adrian in the commotion that ensued once Joey was freed from the gator's jaws. Incredibly, the youngster suffered such minor injuries he was treated at the hospital and released.

"My wife Jacqueline prays for our only boy every night when she puts him to bed, asking that God's angels watch over him each and every day," Joe noted. "I tried to locate Adrian to thank him, but never found him. Maybe he was our angel."
